

Sarah Fraser

Leadership Coach & Facilitator

Sarah Fraser is a career and leadership coach and workshop facilitator at her London-based company, Happiness Express. She coaches people towards happiness and high performance.

Happiness is when what you think, what you say and what you do are in harmony - Gandhi

When you cultivate a mindset of self-belief, trust and positivity, you allow yourself and those around you to shine. With the support and challenge of a coach, you identify and leverage your core strengths, and experience a sense of purpose and happiness that allows you to perform at your best.

I coach people and teams towards happiness and high performance.

coaching focus

Personal branding and leadership

background

After graduating in 1996 with a BA(hons) degree in European Business & Languages, Sarah spent the first 13 years of her career in marketing communications and branding roles in Philips and its high tech spin-off, NXP. She worked in the UK, California and Amsterdam in senior international roles, most recently as Global Brand & Advertising Director, where her key markets were Asia Pacific (with a focus on China), Europe and USA. Her professional background positions her well for understanding the challenges and triumphs of corporate multinationals.

The coaching seed was sown when Sarah supported Philips' talent management programme as a coach facilitator at their week-long leadership development centres from 2001 to 2003. She subsequently continued as a coach within the company alongside her marketing role, helping develop new talent in the organisation.

In 2009, she graduated with a Diploma in Personal Performance Coaching from The Coaching Academy, Europe's leading coach training organisation, and in 2010 qualified as a Master Practitioner in Neuro Linguistic Programming (NLP). Sarah is certified in the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI). She is an ongoing student of Emotional Intelligence, Positive Psychology and Mindfulness and brings this learning to her work with coaching clients.

Sarah holds the Professional Certified Coach (PCC) credential with the International Coach Federation (ICF). In 2018 she became a Certified Mentor Coach to help other coaches develop in their profession. She continues to develop her coaching expertise through a variety of courses, seminars and further reading.

Sarah started Happiness Express Coaching in Amsterdam in 2009, established it in London in 2012, Sydney in 2013 and has been London-based again since 2015. She enjoys working with clients globally via Skype.
